about us

We are:

- a national, non-profit organisation
- an independent voice from a variety of backgrounds, all sharing an interest in strengthening environmental and sustainability education opportunities across all sectors of society
- dedicated networkers and passionate and committed people working to promote and support environmental education, lifelong learning and sustainable behaviour throughout New Zealand/Aotearoa.

Our organisation has two co-chairs, a national executive and a number of regional branches: Northland, Auckland, Bay of Plenty/Hawke's Bay, Waikato, Wellington, Christchurch and Southern (Otago/Southland), and a number of individual members outside these areas.

what we do

We:

- provide a network for building relationships to share information and resources
- produce a bi-monthly e-newsletter co-ordinate Seaweek nationally deliver a stimulating national conference every two years
- support and provide local workshops and other events
- advise on environmental and sustainability education issues
- actively participate in a number of initiatives including the UN Decade of Education for Sustainable Development
- advocate for the environment, recognising it is inextricably linked with social, cultural and economic aspects of sustainability.
